61st NFAIS Annual Conference | February 13 - February 15, 2019 | Alexandria, VA

The National Federation of Advanced Information Services is the premier membership association for organizations that create, organize and facilitate access to reliable information. The NFAIS community encompasses corporate, government and nonprofit entities from around the world.

The 61st anniversary NFAIS annual conference will take place February 13 – February 15, 2019, at the Hilton Alexandria Old Town, with anticipated attendance of more than 200 people.

Conference events include keynote speakers, panel discussions, breakout sessions, networking events, and receptions—all designed to encourage the flow of information by promoting communication and collaboration across the global information community. Attendees will find opportunities to share and solve challenges with other subject matter experts. There is no better place to connect with government, academia, nonprofit and commercial business leaders in the world-wide information field.

Sponsorship of programs such as the 2019 conference can deliver increased awareness, brand building and propensity to purchase in your target market. It's a low cost way to create visibility and traffic for your organization.

As a sponsor of NFAIS, your organization not only supports NFAIS' efforts to increase the communication within the global information industry, you will have the unique opportunity to connect to a variety of forward-looking individuals with your message, to share your expertise and to drive people to your website.

Who attends NFAIS conferences?

Conference attendees include a veritable cross-section of creative information and technology experts who embrace change, and who seek to move forward in creating the future of information services, including:

- Database creators
- Publishers
- Libraries
- Host systems
- Information technology developers
- Content management providers

"This is an assembly of some of the best and brightest when it comes to organizing, displaying, and exposing information on the web. I had no idea what I was in for, but all through the conference I was scrawling notes and frantically tweeting."

Angela Cochran, Director of Journals, American Society of Civil Engineers

“When I moved into academia, I saw enormous value in being active in NFAIS because here is the place where important conversations are happening between the non-profit, for-profit, the government and the libraries. When I go to NFAIS’s Annual Conference, I’m learning how other people are seeing the issues and opportunities and other ways to address common problems.”

Judith Russell, Dean of University Libraries, George A. Smathers Libraries, University of Florida
